

The Intersection of Ableism and Racism in Healthcare

Additional Resources

Books	Black Disability Politics by Sami Schalk Black Health: The Social, Political, and Cultural Determinants of Black People's Health by Keisha Ray Disability Bioethics: Moral Bodies, Moral Difference by Jackie Leach Scully Embodied Injustice: Race, Disability, and Health by Mary Crossley Just Care by Akemi Nishida Killing the Black Body: Race, Reproduction, and the Meaning of Liberty by Dorothy Roberts The Disability Bioethics Reader edited by Joel Reynolds and Christine Wieseler
Podcasts	Ableism in Healthcare The Economic Cost of Ableism and Racism Interlocking Inequities: White Supremacy and Ableism
Articles	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● "A Critical Moment in Bioethics: Reckoning with Anti-Black Racism Through Intergenerational Dialogue"● "Bioethicists Can and Should Contribute to Addressing Racism" by Marion Danis et al● "Bioethics, Race, and Contempt" by Yolanda Wilson● "Black Bioethics in the Age of Black Lives Matter" by Keisha Ray et al.● "Comfort Care as Denial of Personhood" by William Peace (2012)● "Intersectionality in Clinical Medicine: The Need for a Conceptual Framework" By Yolonda Wilson et al● "Why Bioethics Needs a Disability Moral Psychology" by Joseph Stramondo